Paul Jensen is currently on the mend from knee surgery (and we wish him a speedy recovery), so we're allowing him to draft off the EBC Team Car this month while he heals and when he's feeling better, we'll send a few "domestiques" back to pace him up to the peloton and, eventually, with the lead group. Paul, get well soon! I'm filling the page with a few snippets here and there. PS, or as I used to be called, Jean-Paul Allez.

AWESOME JANE WEBER

Hi my name is Jane Weber. I am a member of EBC. I was diagnosed on Oct 17, 2013 with ALL (Acute Lymphoblastic Leukemia).

Currently, I am in remission. However, I am waiting for a match to do a bone marrow transplant. The website to learn about this process and possibly be tested to be a match (join the registry) is bethematch.org.

Thanks for your consideration. Also, thank you for all of your thoughts and prayers!

Santa Claus Century...First Warm 100 of the Year!

April 19th Ride in Newburgh

Fuller Center for Housing Ride and Build

By Diane Bies

In March I rode with the Fuller Center for Housing from Nashville, TN to Jackson, MI. This year as we traveled we stopped on Thursday and were transported to Greenwood, MI to work on a build project.

It was to build steps for some “Katrina Cottages” that are to be placed in a poor area of Greenwood that the city is trying to clean up. We made 7 sets of steps that day and cut out and prepared for assembly another 20 or 30 sets. Another group would come in to town another time to finish that project. It was really rewarding though. It was especially exciting for me since my Grandparents had lived in Greenwood when I was a child and I have been there many times to visit them and twice as an adult just to see the town again.

Then in early April, Bill Voegel and Bill Johnson and I went to Louisville to do a build project with the Fuller Center Legacy Build Project. We had a ton of fun working alongside about 20 other people on our house. There were 7 houses being worked on that week. We did not finish getting our house into living condition either but it was pretty close. Again, we had a great time and felt really warmed by the improvements we made to the Shawnee neighborhood of Louisville. Charles, we didn’t catch his last name, is the future homeowner of the house we worked on. It was really great to be able to meet him and see the joy and pride he had in this home.

In June, my daughter, Nicole, and I are going to drive to Toledo, Ohio for another week of cycling and building with the Fuller Center. We are inviting anyone else to come along with us.

Our current plan is to leave on Friday June 20 to arrive in Toledo for the build day that is happening on Saturday June 21. Then we will have a “rest” day on Sunday. Monday through Wednesday we will ride a total of 227 miles to Gary, IN where we will do another build day on Thursday. Then on Friday we will ride 70 miles through Chicago on the lakefront to Waukegan, IL where we will have another build day on Saturday. I plan to stay in the area on Sunday and drive home on Monday. I do have someone driving my car from Toledo to Waukegan for me so I have space for others who are interested.

This is your personal invitation again to come along on this trip in June. The dates are somewhat flexible on both ends if someone wants to go but needs to be home sooner or not leave as early. Just let me know if you are interested. Talk with Hill or Pill if you want to know about the build experience. It would be great fun to have a group of EBC folks along for the ride! It is a very worthwhile organization and a great time on a bike as well.

NEWS FROM THE LEAGUE

ANALYSIS: OBAMA TRANSPORTATION BILL

With the Highway Trust Fund going bankrupt this summer and the current transportation bill set to expire in September, the Obama administration sent the GROW AMERICA Act to Congress today.

The 4-year, $302 billion proposal is an encouraging starting point for a new transportation law. Addressing equity, connectivity and local control, the bill takes promising steps toward the League's four federal priorities for bicycling.

"The bill sets a good tone for a healthy discussion about the role of transportation in our communities," said Andy Clarke, president of the League. "Issues such as equity, quality of life, health and climate change should be at the core of transportation policy; we should be building a transportation system that works for everyone; local government should have a stronger voice in funding decisions – and this bill moves us in that direction."

Here's our preliminary analysis of the 350-page bill as it relates to bicycling. Learn more during our Federal Policy Update webinar tomorrow at 1 p.m. Eastern.

EQUITY

- Establishes a federal equity goal including a pilot project for up to 10 Metropolitan Planning Organizations to do an inventory of connectivity with a focus on disadvantaged communities — and funding to set a target and to meet that target.
- Strengthens language to upgrade public participation from "comment on plan" to "provide input" during development and implementation of transportation plans
- What it doesn't do: Unfortunately, the New Opportunities for Bicycle and Pedestrian Infrastructure, which would direct $11 million in TIFIA funds to bike-ped projects in low-income communities, is NOT included.

FUNDING

- Writes TIGER into the authorization law — with bicycle and pedestrian projects explicitly eligible.
- Creates FAST — Fixing and Accelerating Surface Transportation — a program modelled on Race to the Top. Incentivizing best practices and innovation, it provides $1 billion in funding per year to states and MPOs. Criteria include health, quality of life, and safety — and bike/ped is explicitly eligible.

- Includes incentives for states to spend funding on bicycling and pedestrian safety in states with a high bike/ped fatality rates. We hope such incentives will be expanded and strengthened.
- Increases funding and authority to high-performing MPOs.
- Makes NGOs and MPOs (that don't run their own funding competition) eligible, and allows states to bundle projects to meet the 80% federal / 20% local match.
- Restores funding to federal lands programs.
- What it doesn't do: The bill does NOT restore funding levels of TAP to Fiscal Year 2011 level, does NOT codify that bike share is eligible for CMAQ funding and does NOT remove the "treatment of projects" language that requires that all TAP projects are treated as if they are federal-aid highway projects.

NATIONAL BIKE PLAN

- The bill includes several policy steps towards setting national transportation goals and performance measures that would be favorable to biking.
- Establishes a federal Complete Streets policy and makes it federal policy that every project that gets federal funding consider all modes.
- Strengthens local control and involvement by establishing the FAST program, authorizing TIGER, establishing incentives for designated high-performing metropolitan planning organizations, and by setting up a program to improve data collection and analysis in support of performance measures.
- Establishes a national goal on connectivity and opportunity and explicitly includes bicycling and walking connections.
- Right to the road: Repeals the mandatory sidepath provision in MAP-21 which forced bicyclists on federal lands to ride on a trail instead of the road, if a path were located within 100 feet.
- What it doesn't do: It doesn't explicitly create a National Bike Plan, though it does include promising goals.

SAFETY

- Takes the first step to pushing funding to areas of significant biking and walking fatalities. If a state transfers funding to 402 grants and more than 5% of the state fatalities are bicyclists and pedestrians then 30% of the transfer has to go to bike/ped.
- What it doesn't do: Establish a non-motorized safety performance measure
